

Installing a PASW Commuter License on Laptops

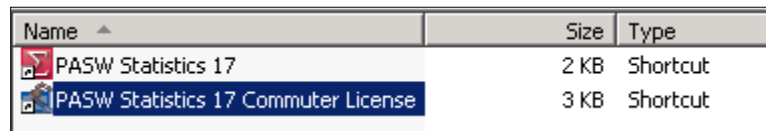

On your university-owned laptop, to access PASW when you travel or are not plugged into the university wired network; follow the procedures below to grant yourself a temporary Commuter License. This license will reside on your laptop and allow access to PASW for the time granted that you will not be plugged into the university wired network.

Requirements

PASW must be installed on your laptop computer before you can install a commuter license. See the instructions on the PASW web page for instructions.

Commuter License Instructions

1. Plug your laptop into the wired campus network
2. In Windows, go to Start Menu> Programs and choose SPSS Inc.
3. Select PASW Statistics 17
4. Select the PASW Statistics 17 Commuter License (Fig.1)
5. In the SPSS Commuter Utility window, select PASW Statistics (1200) 17.0 (Fig. 2).
6. Enter the number of days that you need the license validated in the Duration box. You can choose a maximum of 30 days.

After Checkout, you will now see a red check mark and the license amount decrease by 1 (for the current day) (Fig. 3).

You can now use PASW while not plugged into the Towson network

8. When you return to the Towson network, plug into the university network
 9. Open the PASW Commuter License program.
 10. Select PASW Statistics (1200) 17.0 and press the Check in button. The license will be returned to the license pool and is available for others to use.
- Note: when the duration of days for your license expires, PASW will no longer run. You will need to renew the license (below).
11. To renew your license, return to the university; plug in your laptop into the wired campus network and repeat the steps above.
